Comment:

The best use of Cap-and-Trade auction proceeds is to return them to the public through a dividend. Please put a plan into effect which distributes funds for energy-saving upgrades in the home and in transportation.

Thank you for accepting these comments on the Cap-and-Trade Auction Proceeds Draft Investment Plan. The rebates and vouchers proposed in the Draft Plan (pages B-6 and B-7) should be expanded and be called a "Transportation Dividend" and a "Household Dividend." The Transportation Dividend would assist low-and middle-income drivers, transit users, people who rideshare, and others. The Household Dividend would assist low-and middle-income homeowners and renters and encourage the purchase of Energy Star products that renters can also purchase easily. It should be sent to all Californians. It should expire before the next year, and if it is not used, it would default back to the state to be used for other investments. The Dividends can reside on a debit card.

Thanks much for considering this proposal.

Please consider expanding the rebates and vouchers proposed in the Draft Plan (pages B-7 and B-15) and call them into a "Transportation Dividend" and a "Household Dividend". The Transportation Dividend would assist low- and middle-income drivers, transit users, people who ride share, and others. The Household Dividend would assist low- and middle-income homeowners and renters and encourage the purchase of Energy Star products that renters can also purchase easily. This dividend should go to all Californians via a debit card. This card would expire before the following year, and if not used, return to the state, which can use it for other clean energy investments.
