From: Jeff Huggard
Grain Merchandiser, Scott Cooperative Association

This letter is in regard to your inquiry about our handling of milo and specifically whether or not we use commercial dryers to dry the crop as it is delivered to our elevators. The Scott Cooperative Association is a farmer own grain and supply cooperative. On average we will receive and ship out around 5 million bushels of milo annually. We require that the milo be delivered to our elevators after it has had time to dry naturally in the field. Therefore, we don't have the need to dry any of our milo using commercial dryers.

Sincerely,
